

The Legislation Guarding the Five Necessities

حفظ الشريعة للضروريات الخمس

(English - إنجليزي)

Witten by:

Hakam A. Zummo Al-Aqily

Dr. Abd Al-Kareem Zidaan

Translated by:

Hakam A. Zummo Al-Aqily

Abu Adham Osama Omara

Reviewed by:

Abu Adham Osama Omara

Islamic Propagation Office in Rabwah, Riyadh

المكتب التعاوني للدعوة وتوعية الجاليات بالربوة بمدينة الرياض

2009 - 1430

Islam came to protect five necessities for the human being, they are: Religion, Life, Regeneration, Money and Brain.

Religion: Islam came to protect the human rights to choose his religion, meanwhile encourage human to truly think and search about the truth. Also, this protection contains spreading Islam, defending it and preventing those who cast doubt on it from spreading their wrong ideas.

Life: Islam preserves human life, by preventing someone to kill others or to kill himself, and makes the punishment for the murderer death, and it also makes it permissible to eat dead animals and other things in order to survive.

Regeneration: Islam preserves the survival of the human race in order to achieve the succession of humankind on earth. Therefore, it prohibits everything that leads to mixing of lineages, such as adultery and temporary marriage, or everything that leads to the complete disappearance of humanity, such as incest, same-sex marriage (homosexuality, lesbianism), and other abnormal sexual relationships.

Money: Islam came to preserve money, direct it to be acquired from what is permissible and not to attack it by stealing, and to prevent the foolish from the right to dispose of his money so that he does not waste it on no benefit or benefit in it.

Brain: Islam came to protect human brain by preventing any act in which the brain is lost like preventing alcohol and drugs.